What is the purpose of managing the solution scope and requirements from a business analyst's objective?
A. To complete business analysis activities as quickly as possible
B. To obtain and maintain requirements approval from the sponsoring client about the solution scope
C. To complete business analysis activities as accurately as possible
D. To obtain and maintain consensus among key stakeholders for the overall solution scope
Answer: D
Explanation:
Explanation
The purpose of managing solution scope and requirements is to obtain and maintain consensus among key stakeholders regarding the overall solution scope and the requirements that will be implemented.
Answer A is incorrect. This isn't a valid answer, as the purpose of managing the solution scope and requirements is to gain consensus from the stakeholders, not to complete the business analysis tasks as quickly as possible.
Answer D is incorrect. This isn't a valid answer, as the purpose of managing the solution scope and requirements is to gain consensus from the stakeholders. While there's always a need for accuracy, this isn't the best answer for the question.

Answer B is incorrect. This isn't a valid answer, as the purpose of managing the solution scope and requirements is to gain consensus from the stakeholders, not from the sponsoring client.
