NEW QUESTION: 2
You have an Enterprise Root certification authority (CA) that runs Windows Server 2008 R2. You need to ensure that you can recover the private key of a certificate issued to a Web server. What should you do?
A. From the CA, run the Get-PfxCertificate cmdlet.
B. From the CA, run the certutil.exe tool and specify the -exportpfx parameter.
C. From the Web server, run the Get-PfxCertificate cmdlet.
D. From the Web server, run the certutil.exe tool and specify the -exportpfx parameter.
Answer: D
Explanation:
certutil.exe -exportpfx will allow you to export certificate or keys from a certificate store.
We need to recover a certificate issued to the web server, so we must run this command from the web server itself. Later, we would likely import the certificate to the CA.
The Get-PfxCertificate cmdlet gets information about .pfx certificates from a computer, but does not allow recovery or management of them.

MS Press - Self-Paced Training Kit (Exam 70-640) (2nd Edition, July 2012) page 643-644 After you have selected Selective Authentication for the trust, no trusted users will be able to access resources in the trusting domain, even if those users have been given permissions. The users must also be assigned the Allowed To Authenticate permission on the computer object in the domain.

To assign this permission:
1.Open the Active Directory Users And Computers snap-in and make sure that Advanced Features is selected on the View menu.
2.Open the properties of the computer to which trusted users should be allowed to authenticate-that is, the computer that trusted users will log on to or that contains resources to which trusted users have been given permissions.
3.On the Security tab, add the trusted users or a group that contains them and select the Allow check box for the Allowed To Authenticate permission.
